DIED.

DEATH—Notice is hereby given of the death of Richard Dent at Washington Asylum Hospital on March 24, 1896.

Relatives or friends will call at H. P. Hargreaves' Sons, 928 Pennsylvania at northwest, and make arrangements for his burial within thirty-six hours.

HARRETT—In loving remembrance of our dear daughter, Mamie Harrett, who died one year ago today, March 26, 1895, aged eighteen years and six months.

Calms on the bosom of thy God.

Fair spirit rest thee now.

Even while with ours thy footsteps trod.

Dust to its narrow home beneath.

They that have seen thee look in death.

No more may fear to die.

BY HER SISTERS AND PARENTS.

JONES—At Herndon, Va., March 25, at 7:30 a.m., Edwin H. Jones, son of James H. and late Eliza F. Jones, aged forty-five years.

Funeral from Baltimore and Potomac depot, Friday, March 27, at 3 p.m. Interment at Congressional cemetery.

WOMAN'S PAGE.

FOR NECK AND CHIN.

Methods of Restoring Them to Comparative Beauty After Neglect.

A BEAUTIFUL column of a throat, a chin clear cut, with no suggestion of fullness in its roundness or of multiplicity in its curves. Who has them? Not many women. Lack of exercise makes what should be the firm column a weak, wavering, sometimes sallow, sometimes wrinkled, support for the head. And careless indulgence in all sorts of eatables and drinkables, and the wearing of leading bands about the neck have taken all the sculpture style of beauty from the chin.

How may all these evils be remedied? By time, patience and effort—a much more potent combination than lotions, ointments and greases. One must, unfortunately, have high collars on the street gowns, but freedom may be given the neck in house frocks.

Exercise will tighten the flesh of the throat as surely as it does that of the athlete's arm. Diet will reduce some of the folds of the chin. Massage will help in the good work. Sleeping on pillowless beds will aid still more, and, finally, lotions will assist in the whitening process. Dumb-bell exercises, such as are taught to children in the schools, bring the muscles of the upper chest into play. The twisting motions of the neck and the tending of the head slowly back and forth affect the muscles of the neck and make them firm and hard. Massage, the passive exercise of the flesh, has the same effect. Cold water hardens the flesh and cold cream softens the skin. Consequently, daily gymnastics and neck exercises, nightly rubbings with cold cream and morning baths in cold water, after the grease has been removed by warm water, combined with judicious massage, will make of neck and chin what they should be.

WRINKLES AND CROWSFEET.

Mrs. Ayer Tells How to Eradicate These Signs of Age.

WRINKLES in young or middle-aged women are unnatural and may be deplored, but they may be entirely obliterated or so lightened as to be scarcely perceptible.

The general treatment for wrinkles which have been induced by illness and care and anxiety is great cleanliness, nutritious food, out-of-door exercise, agreeable occupation of the mind, and the cultivation of an equable temper and happy spirit. What ever tends to promote the general health and to increase the deposit of fat in the skin tissues of the face tends to obliterate lines and wrinkles and to increase the firmness and beauty of the skin.

Attention to the diet is of the utmost importance, and massage, if not administered too liberally, is of great benefit. The skin is kept smooth and firm by its padding of fat, and with the loss of flesh and the softening of the muscles from whatever cause the skin loses its support and falls into folds and furrows.

For these premature wrinkles I advise washing of the face frequently with a good, pure soap and warm water, and the following lotion applied after the face has been rinsed thoroughly so that every particle of soap is removed and carefully dried: White wine (three or four ounces), 1 pint. Powdered alum..... 4 grammes. Rose water..... 50 grammes. Dissolve thoroughly and filter. This mixture is indorsed by very high authority as most efficacious in restoring the skin to its original firmness. Apply as often as required.

Miss Sarah Orne Jewett occasionally writes sketches of 6,000 or 7,000 words a day. Her favorite method is to work steadily during five or six weeks and then to stop for a like period.

Fawn Coats.

Fawn coats are the rage—every one will buy them, excepting the woman who goes in for exclusive modes, and she will have her tailor make her a black one.

EVERY DAY finds us adding new friends to our already long list of older ones. Such services as ours at such prices are bound to command themselves and win merited appreciation. Artificial TEETH—that fit, look lifelike and are durable—guaranteed to—$3.00. EXTRACTING—the painless, pleasant sort—50 cents. Tell us your tooth troubles—we'll right them.

WEDDING WISDOM.

A YOUNG woman who runs a winning race with Fashion, says the very newest thing is to have a married woman for maid of honor—that is, if the bride's sister or dearest friend happens to be married, she is no longer debarred on that account. A benefactor to the best man has been permitted for some time. The duty of the best man is to support the groom after the fashion of a second at a duel, to drive with him to church, stand by him during the ceremony and fee the clergyman.

The groom should remain in the vestry room until he knows the bride is actually at the church door.

It is very bad form for a bride to bow or smile in passing out of church, but she need not feel obliged to glare her eyes to the floor.

The throwing of rice is a relic of an old Roman custom which requires a maiden to come to her bridal bearing aloft a sheaf of wheat, emblematic of prosperity. If an old shoe can be lodged on the roof of the bridal carriage good luck is assured. It is no longer usual to display presents on the wedding day. They are shown before or after the great occasion, always divested of the sender's card.

REST BEFORE DINING.

To Eat Heartily When Tired Paves the Way for Dyspepsia.

IF a woman courts indigestion, she can devise no surer method of getting it than by eating heartily when she is very tired. Chronic dyspepsia is almost sure to follow a long course of heavy dinners eaten when the diaphragm is worn out with her day's work.

To prepare for dinner after a busy day take off the street gown, take out the hair pins and take off the shoes. Brush the hair a few minutes and pin it loosely up, but not in the same place where it is usually worn. Have ready a bowl of very hot water. Wash the face and neck in it. Press the wash cloth, as hot as it can be borne, at the back of the neck and over the eyes. When the hot water has relaxed the tense, tired muscles somewhat, dash cold water, with toilet vinegar or cologne in it, over the face and neck. Then lie down for fifteen minutes. Keep the eyes closed and the mind as far as possible a blank.

Then drink a cup of hot water or of hot weak tea. Put on a fresh gown, and when the weariness has been unusually severe, the blindest and most rested sensations follow, and dinner is a pleasure and not another duty in the day's dull routine.

JEAN INGELW'S HEALTH.

It was reported a few weeks ago that Miss Jean Ingelow, the celebrated poetess, was dying, and much space was devoted in the newspapers to the charm of her personality and the beauty of her art. The rumor of the approaching demise of the delightful poetess was found, however, to be quite false, for although her health is feeble, and her years advanced, she is certainly very far from being in a dangerous condition. She is a cheerful character; and has a perfect horror of anything approaching publicity or notoriety. She lives with her bachelor brother in a quaint little house in Kensington, where

WHAT A WOMAN SAW.

SOFT pillows make wrinkles.

THE veil is an important addition to the spring hat.

A WOMAN'S refinement is indicated by the perfume she uses.

WHITE lingerie and March slush are not the most suitable companions.

CAPIES in which applied designs on black are employed are considered stylish.

CHIFFON veiling and too becoming to be discarded, even though they are a year old.

THE Refine wing is almost square in shape and is seen on some of the smartest hats.

IF you wish to make a man perfectly happy, ask him for his special chafing dish receipts.

THE bang and bang net are said to be coming to us from across the sea. Let us hope they will be shipwrecked on route.

THE possession of a five-dollar bill only is as embarrassing as the absence of your only five-cent piece if you happen to be on the street cars.

IF you wish to show trouble introduce into your home a puppy with a propensity to chew everything, from lace curtains to your best feather bed.

DON'T think because a woman's desk looks frivolous with its spindle legs and silver ornaments that sound literary work cannot be turned out there.

WHY is it that the woman whose features are thrown together in haphazard fashion always insists on wearing her hair in an exaggerated Psyche knot?

THE DAY'S DISH.

Bird's Nest Toast.

SEPARATE the white of an egg from the yolk, leaving the yolk unbroken in a shell. Beat the white of the egg to a stiff froth, and lay in a circular form on a piece of toasted bread placed on a flat tin pan, well buttered. Then drop the yolk of the egg into the center of the white, and place the pan in the oven to brown.

Blue Blood in Trade.

Mrs. Francis Kallston, a pretty young woman, who is a member of Philadelphia's first exclusive set, has gone into the millinery business in the Quaker City. She has long been noted for her exquisite taste in dress, and many of her townswomen are glad of the opportunity of benefiting by it.

THE NEW BOY APPEARS.

A LITTLE boy of six, who, with his parents, has been spending the winter in the South, one day found his way into a Sunday-school in the city where they were staying. The teacher in whose class he was placed was a pleasant young woman, and when the session was over the child, entirely on his own responsibility, invited her to call upon his mother. In the course of a few days she appeared. After the visit was over the little boy said to his mother: "Mamma, I think you ought to be very proud and thankful to me for introducing you to the best society in Savannah!"

THE VICTORIA FAN.

A FLORIST in London has invented a new bouquet to succeed the "show-bouquet," lately in vogue. It is called the "Victoria Fan" bouquet. As its title indicates, it is formed like a fan, and, like its predecessor, is very light and easy to carry. Its peculiar shape and the peculiar way in which it is mounted adapt it remarkably well to the quaint and prettiest combinations of color. It is finished off with streamers suited to the costume, and is altogether a perfect little gem.

Encouraging.

A man who occupies an influential position in the city government recently received a letter from a lady who wished to get appropriations for a charitable institution in which she was interested. "We have gotten positions for over a hundred women," she wrote, "have at present seventy-five inmates and a flourishing little colony in Paradise."

FLOWER RAISING.

IF what a happy thing it is to be a person of resources! A friend of mine who lives in a country district, where money does not grow on trees, became dissatisfied with the income she derived from her hens and cows, and decided, as she had always been successful in raising plants, to see if she could not arrange with a city florist to supply him with a portion of the cut flowers he used.

The florist to whom she applied was glad to enter into the arrangement, and she began early last spring sending him violets, following a little later with jonquils, hyacinths, then roses, and in the fall chrysanthemums. She always has given some time to her plants, and felt that she was simply repaid the pleasure and the mental and physical recreation she got from the work; now she gives a little more time, and, in addition to the pleasure and recreation, has a solid financial remuneration that is to help send her two daughters to school without mortgaging the farm.

I have often wondered why women who live in or within easy reach of large cities do not give more attention to raising plants, the blooms of which would find a place in the markets. Take violets, for instance; they always command a good price, and they are easy of culture. Much of the money many women waste in buying "the hard times" could be profitably spent in attending to a home flower garden.

Persistence, patience and perseverance are the three P's that spell success in the home culture of flowers. If you have never tried flower growing you may expect to meet many failures. Professional florists do not always succeed, and I have heard enough about poor crops from our friends, the farmers. Why, then, should we expect every seed we put in the ground to grow? Of course, we must expect failures, and it is in overcoming them, in studying the nature, the habits and the requirements of different plants that half the pleasure of floriculture lies. The wise beginner will read the floriculture page of a good magazine, will talk to her friends and will confine her efforts at first to some of the standard plants whose habits are well known and easily learned.

In growing plants for the home, do not neglect to supply liberally such as will produce blossoms for the decoration of the table. A few flowers do wonders in brightening not only the appearance of the table, but the spirits of everyone around the board as well. Every house of nature rejoices that these stiff, artificial set pieces that we were used to seeing in the center of the dining table have entirely gone out of fashion, and now the most natural arrangement possible is sought after. Only one, or at most, two kinds of flowers are used at a time in table decorations, and as far as possible the foliage of the plants is used with the flowers. Nature doesn't make many mistakes, and the artist has not yet been born who can improve upon her arrangement of bud and leaf.
